

Every Interest a Woman has

Is mirrored in The Delineator—the one perfect Cyclopedia of Information for Women.

NO MATTER what she is intent upon, other women have already pondered over it, and the results of their experiences are recorded monthly in THE DELINEATOR.

Its pages treat of every phase in her life and daily doings—her work and her recreations, her wardrobe and her kitchen, her drawing-room and its society, her boudoir and its dainty furnishings.

It keeps health in the nursery, helps with the servants, and at every hour of a woman's day it offers its timely aid by wise counsel or clever suggestion.

If it is a question of dress, whether it be the morning gown or the night robe, or the many costumes in between, THE DELINEATOR reflects the fashion truly, and fully, and clearly.

"Just get The Delineator"

Its illustrations of the modes are without question the finest that are published to-day, and they outnumber by far even those in the journals devoted exclusively to dress.

Its styles are now copied in Paris, London and Vienna—the erstwhile fashion-centres—a part of the "American Invasion of Europe" that is not as yet generally recognized.

And a word about its stories, poems and literary papers generally, although they deserve a column to themselves. Their quality is of the best—just compare them with what appears in any other high-class periodical.

In fact, it is just the sort of magazine that you would like to take regularly, we should think.

November Number just out. 15 cents per copy. Sold by all Newsdealers and Butterick Agents. Send $1.00 now and get the Magazine for an entire year.

THE BUTTERICK CO., 17 W. 13th St., New York

New Crawford Theater.
8:15 TONIGHT 8:15
The Great Four Act Detective Play.
"THE CAUGHT IN THE WEB."
Written by Joseph L. Brandt, author of "On the Streets of Twelve."
Hilbert Steele, Jr., in the role of the Senator.
Prices, 25c to $2.00.

Mrs. Joseph M. Patten gave a dinner for eight at the Blower house Sunday in compliment to Miss Vera Low and Mr. Albert T. Reid. The table flowers were white roses in the centerpiece, and violets as favors for the guests, who included besides Miss Low and Mr. Reid, Mrs. M. C. Robinson, Miss Helen Thompson, Miss Ivah Davis, Miss Bessie Campbell, Mr. Lewis C. Bronson and Mr. Archie P. Williams.

The Eureka-Topeka-Manhattan Beach club, organized from the members of an over-Sunday party at Eureka lake, has for president and secretary Mr. P. Dewey and Mr. Chauncey Dewey of Manhattan; board of directors, Mrs. Hill of Kansas City, Mrs. Ulrich of Manhattan, Mrs. Mary F. Olsen and Mr. W. A. Morton, of Topeka.

Mrs. Emily Whitmer has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter Bertha and Mr. Lionel Britton Wood, at her home, 1309 Sixth avenue west, Wednesday evening, October 15, at half past 8 o'clock. The bride is to be attended by Miss Lella Wood and the groomsmen will be Mr. Thomas Whitmer, the Very Rev. Philip D. Wood, and Mrs. Bessie Kaye will perform the ceremony. At home after November 15, Cleburne, Texas.

The Felicity Whist club will meet with Mrs. Dan Small, 514 Tenth avenue west, Tuesday afternoon at half past 2 o'clock.

Miss Fordyce entertained at an over-Sunday house party at her home on Taylor street, Mrs. Anna Fulton Gibb, Miss Neddie Grifft, Miss Neddie Wetherholt, Miss Emily McMullen and Miss Gertrude Babcock.

A new music club organized last week has the following officers: Miss Bessie Morrow, president; Miss Margaret Jettmore, secretary; Miss Frances Mitchell, treasurer; Miss Bessie Morrow, Mrs. Wilhelm Marburg compose a membership committee.

Mrs. C. E. Bonnell of 509 East Eighth entertained very pleasantly Saturday afternoon the little friends of her daughter, Olive, on the occasion of her seventh birthday. Games and refreshments were served to while away the afternoon and a very delightful time was enjoyed by the little folks. Invitations were extended to Mary Parkinson, Gertrude Russell, Gertrude Kling, Ruth Kanter, Florence Wilson, Anna Peterson, Irene Peterson, Blanch McDowell, Florence, Robert, Mabel, Moll, Hazel, Ethel, William, Dorothy, Evelyn, Ethel Lewis and Thelma Boyd.

Notes and Personal Mention.

Dr. John Lawrence Work, who is to be married Wednesday to Miss Lida Bergen, arrived in town Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Layburn, of Bern, are guests of Mrs. Edwin Knowles.

Miss Eleanor Work, of Oklahoma, who will be one of the bridesmaids at the Bergen-Work wedding, came to town Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Alton, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Green, for a week left today for her home in Oklahoma City.

Miss Kathryn Junkerman, of Wichita, will be an out-of-town guest at the Helianthus party Friday night. She will visit Miss Harriet Stanley.

Mr. Sam Fleischman will go to Colorado on a business trip next week.

Mr. David Lakin is in town.

Mrs. Albert Warner of Raton, N. M., who was in town over Sunday and sang at the Presbyterian church left for her home today.

Mrs. W. M. Stingley and her daughter, Alleen, of Manhattan, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Pond Fritts Sunday.

Mr. Charles E. Pitts, of Kansas City, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. C. E. Pitts.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Peck are in their new home at the corner of Seventh and Fillmore street.

Mrs. J. W. Stoker of Potwin has returned from Cheyenne, Wyo., where she attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. C. R. Stabler.

The Chicago Record-Herald of Sunday published a picture of Miss Daisy Davidson, formerly of Topeka, described as a "pretty, hospitable and talented young woman of the south side."

Mr. Francis Fiske Powers, who has just closed his summer season at Topeka, was the guest of Mr. Geo. Parkhurst yesterday, and today returned to New York, where he will resume teaching at his beautiful studio in Carnegie hall. Mr. Powers will return next summer and continue his classes in Miss Tracy's studio, where his work has been so successfully conducted during the past four months. His engaging personality and genial sympathy with not only the ambitious of trained musicians but with the aspirations of the tyro, has won for him many friends, and those who failed to avail themselves of his instruction during the past summer are particularly anxious to do so when he reopens his work next year, as he will then be accompanied by an Italian teacher who will assist him. The season just closed has been a fruitful one not only in the amount of work done but the enthusiasm aroused among musical people. During the winter his class will be coached by Miss Tracy, who spent a year in New York taking special work with him, and who is so thoroughly acquainted with his method that he feels that she is competent to continue the work with his pupils until his return.

Mrs. Fred Bartell, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Oran W. Kelley in Kansas City for a fortnight, returned today. Mr. Bartell and their son Leslie Thomas joined them for Sunday. Miss Lotta Chapman has returned from a visit in Des Moines, Iowa, to her sister, Mrs. E. E. Miller.

Colonel Mrs. Niles spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Nagle at their country place east of Topeka.

Mrs. J. A. Plan of Beville, Texas, is visiting the family of Mr. H. F. Jones in Highland Park.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Branner announce the engagement of their daughter Rose to Mr. Richard Sternkopf of Milwaukee, Wis., to take place October 29 at their home 512 Kansas avenue.

Miss Louise Hoover and Mr. Melvin Schlegel were married Thursday evening of last week at the home of the bride's parents, in Everett, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Schlegel formerly lived in Topeka and have a wife accompanying them. They will be at home after October 20 at the Tower Hotel, Everett, Wash.

Among the Topeka people who spent Sunday at Manhattan Beach hotel, Eureka lake, were: Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Deane, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mosler, and Mrs. W. A. Morton, Mrs. Mary O'Brien, Mr. L. Trump, Mr. W. H. Whitton, Miss Gertrude McClintock and Miss Frances McClintock, Mr. Archie Babness of Leavenworth, is in town for Miss Harriet Jones' dinner party tonight.

HILL'S KEYNOTE SPEECH.

Trusts, Tariff and the Coal Strike Discussed by New Yorkers.

New York, Oct. 13.—The Democratic state campaign opened in Brooklyn Saturday night. Speeches were made by David B. Hill, Edward M. Grout, George Haines and others. In his introductory remarks Mr. Hill declared that the people are confronted with gigantic combinations of capital, monopolizing the productions of the earth and the most of America's artisans, arbitrarily fixing prices, making corners in the necessities of life, and that the extent and multiplicity of these operations are substantially unlimited by law and uncontrolled by statute. "They dictate the policy of the government," he said, "and the government and presidents," he said, "are merely the question of tariff revision Mr. Hill said:

"We have over $500 millions of surplus revenue in the treasury of the United States. It is almost criminal for the present to resist a modification of the present tax laws. No good reason can be urged why such revision should not be immediately undertaken."

Mr. Hill arraigned the Republican party for its failure to control trusts and monopolies. Of the plan of the government demanding government of the mines he said: "The proposition is neither starting a revolution, nor a socialistic nor paternal, but is constitutional, neither expedient, above all, it is right. It is simply a reasonable and necessary extension of the general policy of public ownership already largely recognized by the municipalities of the country. This proposition does not commit the party to any other projects of public ownership, whatever their merits, if any there may be."

The coal question Mr. Hill declared to be a national one, saying: "If it is not, why did the president himself recently intervene and summon private citizens to the White House for conference and exercise his official influence in regard to a matter over which he had no jurisdiction? He was not acting under any statute. He had no authority for any legal interference on his part. He himself has made it a national question and he and his party are now estopped from otherwise regarding it. It is a national question because the impending coal famine involves the welfare of the whole people of the United States. Such a famine should be prevented from ever occurring again, which cannot be assured under private ownership and control, or in the hands of a few statesmen to provide against just such emergencies in the future. There is no permanent remedy proposed by anybody except that suggested in the Democratic platform."

THE PORTE COMPLAINS.

Declares That Bulgarian Frontier Is Poorly Guarded.

Constantinople, Oct. 13.—The porte has sent a circular to the powers complaining that Bulgaria is inadequately guarding her frontier, that she is permitting Macedonian bands to cross and that the remnants of these bands after being dispersed by Turkish troops, re-cross the frontier and find shelter in Bulgarian territory. The Turkish government also complains that a revolutionary banner was recently waved in the Bulgarian monastery at Rilo and that commands of revolutionary bands have been apportioned to Bulgarian revolutionary bands.

Turkish reinforcements have been sent to Demir-Hissar, Roumelia, to strengthen the frontier cordons.

REVOLUTIONISTS WIN.

Venezuelan Government Troops Repulsed at Coro.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Oct. 13.—The troops of the Venezuelan government have been repulsed while attempting to re-occupy the northwest of the state of Falcon, and sustained heavy losses. A schooner with 60 men on board was sunk.

An engagement was fought at Goyabo three hours from Caracas, Saturday. The government force was defeated, losing 112 men.

The revolutionists have almost completely encircled Caracas.

The British cruiser indefatigable arrived at La Guaira Sunday. Other British vessels are to follow.

The United States gunboat Marietta has returned to La Guaira.

Serious events are predicted for this week.

SOLDIERS ON THE MOVE.

The Fourth Cavalry Camped Near Town Sunday.

Companies E, F, G and H of the Fourth United States cavalry were late camp near the Reform school northwest of the city, Sunday noon, and remained there until this morning.

There are on the "dike" home from Fort Riley, where they participated in the recent maneuvers, to Fort Leavenworth where they are stationed. Following them and expected to arrive today is the entire Sixth infantry.

Close behind them will be a hundred men belonging to the mounted engineers.

Captain Tyre Rivers, acting as major, was in command of the detachment which was here Sunday.

Hempstead, Tex., Oct. 13.—There is considerable excitement over the killing of Mrs. Susan P. Lewis, aged 64, by some unknown person. She was heard to scream and help all futilely as shots were fired. A search was at once made and the woman, clothed only in a night dress, was found in the rear of the stable school, some fifty yards away from her home. Some suspects are being held.

A Combine Frustrated.

Mexico City, Oct. 13.—The general opinion is that the American capitalists seeking to combine the cigar companies have met with insuperable obstacles. One of the principal companies is doing a greatly enlarged business and the shareholders appear unwilling to sell.

German and Swedish young men, desiring to learn English, Y. M. C. A. Night school opens October 15.

George Skene of Elizabeth, Ill., was in Topeka Saturday for the purpose of looking up a location for the Elizabeth Bridge company. He is favorably impressed with this city, and it is probable that the institution will be moved here. He has been looking at some lots on East Sixth avenue near the Santa Fe tracks and the factory might be located.

The company in whose interest he is working gives employment to about twenty men, has equipment at Elizabeth valued at about $50,000, and would be a valuable addition to the manufacturing industries of Topeka. When asked what he expected to do in the way of offering inducements to its being brought here, Mr. Skene responded that he simply wished the good will and favors of the community and the business men generally. John Molison of Smith Center, this state, accompanies Mr. Skene. Molison is a western representative of the com-

MORE BLUNDERS.

Work of Opening Second and Third Streets Stopped.

Judge Hazen Granted Injunction Against the Council.

ADVICE DISREGARDED.

Committee Did Not Follow Advice of City Attorney.

Assessments in Benefit District Not Just.

When the three appraisers appointed by the city council to decide the levy to be made on Fourth warders in the "benefit district" went to work, they thought it would be right to count the lots in the district and then divide the amount to be raised by the number of lots to determine the amount of the assessments. Judge Hazen explained this morning that it had been in error.

When the city was called upon to open an extension of Second and Third streets, and widen a portion of Fillmore, the council picked out a "benefit district" to pay the expenses. This was in accordance with a law giving them the right to do so. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided that the people who owned property in the remotest portions of the district should pay the same as the party whose lot faced the street to be opened or the party whose lot owned on the west by Buchanan street and the city limits, a tract containing about sixteen blocks. The next move was to divide the district into three parts to decide what the property owners in this district would pay. The council thought that it would require about $5,500 to make the improvements. The appraisers were supposed to divide the amount according to the benefit derived from the improvements. The appraisers decided